I'm very concerned with suggestions from AHPRA to force doctors to follow a leftist political agenda by inserting words like "culturally" appropriate by the patient or family as sole determinants (points 2.1 and 4.8 in the draft proposal), and what is supposedly "medically irrelevant". We need doctors who will treat patients according to their own good judgement and conscience, as is allowed in all other professions. As patients we need the freedom to consult doctors and get different opinions, and doctors must be allowed their freedom. These insertions are not about good medical practice, but about government control with social agendas.

Yours sincerely,
