Dr David did the right thing, he tried to expose the misconception of modern day thinking that gender can be altered.

The evidence of young children cannot be legally allowed accepted in courts and yet they are told that their gender can be changed. Children should be allowed to grow up to the age when they can decide properly what they want to do with their lives not have their lives messed up by so called modern day thinking; that age should be 18 years old when they are eligible to vote.

Dr David van Gend did nothing wrong, I support his thinking and you at the Medical Board should support him also not try to prevent him from speaking out.
