

From: [REDACTED]

Sent: Friday, 29 May 2015 8:07 AM

To: medboardconsultation

Subject: Consultation - Registered medical practitioners who provide cosmetic medical and surgical procedures

I wish to lend support to the nursing profession who currently provide cosmetic treatments and I believe whose livelihood could be potentially affected by proposals to alter current injecting procedures.

The reasons why a person would seek cosmetic injections are many and varied but I'm sure the results far outweigh the implications of the mental insecurity and added burden to the health budget should these professional nurses not be allowed to provide these services!

I receive expert attention from a trained professional nurse who always provides sensible advice on the treatment options available. I am always asked re general health and medications, and potential side effects prior to any treatment being undertaken.

I cannot see the sense in changing a system and stripping a nursing professional from their right to treat people in their chosen field when all medical precautions are dealt with sensitively, professionally and with dignity.

Yours faithfully

Leigh [REDACTED]

Supporting Australian Professional Nurses