Dear Sir/ Madam,

I wish to write in support of no change to the current guidelines which are currently working very well.

There are enough checks and balances within the system, and the proposed changes are unnecessary, and in fact seem to push things too far in terms of control. Many suspect an ideological social agenda behind this. Good practice is based on good science applied with kindness and common sense. This is currently the case and is not in need of reform at this time.

Kind Regards,

Dr Nabil Saleh
