It is extremely alarming to read reports today that the Medical Board has put a doctor on notice for retweeting Australian Conservatives Qld candidate Lyle Shelton. The Doctor didn't even add a comment, just a retweet!

ALL medical health professionals MUST be able to question and comment on extremely controversial topics such as transgenderism. There is NO consensus in the medical field and already there is evidence that if doctors have concerns about sterilizing and mutilating kids in the name of hormone therapy or transitioning procedures, they will be silenced or stopped.

Please allow, open, honest and vigorous debate about such issues. Do not become a totalitarian organisation that silences dissenters.

Yours Sincerely,

Kirralie Smith
